Approved For Release 2007/03/03/05/CIA-RIDP82-00457R000411000

INFORMATION REPORT

COUNTRY

SUBJECT

China

PLACE ACQUIRED

DATE OF INFO.

25X1A

RETERM NEIDEN ACTOR STATES 'TO CIA LIBRARY

25X1A

DATE DISTR 11 JAN 50

NO. OF PAGES

NO. OF ENCLS. (LISTED BELOW)

SUPPLEMENT TO

25X1X REPORT NO.

- 1. The inclusion by MAO Tse-tung of non-partisan elements in the Communist central government has led to dissatisfaction in Communist groups, particularly among the old-time army officers and veterans of the Long March. These earlier leaders feel that they have been slighted and that positions they should hold have been given to younger and less experienced personnel, when they regard as political opportunists.
- 2. Dissension is also voiced by LO Lung-chi (維度是) of the Democratic League. LO, although a member of the Communist administrative Council committee, is not included in either the Communist Central Government Council or the Standing Committee of the Political Consultative Conforence.* He and his faction, dissatisfied with their position, have attacked Communist policies and also members of their own organization. CH'LN Jen-ping (), acting chief of the beaccratic League in Shanghai, published an article in the Cutlook () weekly, condemning the long Communist period of "political tutelage" and the practice of using funds from the national treasury for party expenses.
- 3. Within the League, 10 Lung-chi, who opposed its wirtual incorporation into the Communist Party, is at odds with SHEN Chun-ju (流河橋) and SHIH Liang (人人), who sponsored the merger. Lo's oun position is now merely nominal, since with complete control of the League the Communist Party no loager needs his support, and he apparently will soon lose all influence. He has bitterly attacked SHIH Liang and the National Salvation Society. **

25X1A

See

25X1A

572

Gomment. LO Lung-chi's attack on SHIH Liang, with whom he was formerly very friendly, is occasioned partly by personal jealousy.

This document is hereby regraded to CONFIDENTIAL in accordance with the letter of 16 October 1978 from the Director of Central Intelligence to the Archivist of the United States.

Next Review Date: 2008

Document NΩ Class. 1978 By:

1 THE PARTY OF THE	Control Control of the Control of th			אונ	OOUT TO DESTRUCT
ATE	X NAM /	X	NSRB		DISTRIBUTION